is where our heart is.

At Bayer Canada, we are committed to sustainable, social and ethical business practices and creating a positive work environment for our passionate employees — one that reflects our values and our purpose, Science for a better life.

And while it's been over 100 years since we made Aspirin® a household name, finding solutions to the issues that affect Canadians is what drives us today — from medicines that better support our aging population to innovative tools that help our farmers feed our growing population with less impact on our land. Because, Canada is where we work. It's where we live. And it's where we call home.
