

Paul Angaran, MD

Biography

Dr. Angaran is a Cardiac Electrophysiologist at St. Michael's Hospital and an Assistant Professor of Medicine in the Division of Cardiology at the University of Toronto.

Dr. Angaran received his medical degree from the University of Toronto in 2004. He continued training in Internal Medicine and Cardiology at the University of Toronto and received certification by the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada in Internal Medicine in 2008 and Cardiology in 2010. He completed an Electrophysiology Fellowship at the University of Western Ontario in 2012. He then joined the Arrhythmia Service at St. Michael's Hospital in 2013. He subsequently completed his Master's degree in Clinical Epidemiology at the Institute of Health Policy, Management and Evaluation at the University of Toronto in 2019.

His clinical and research interests include complex ablation, including atrial fibrillation and ventricular tachycardia, device therapies and inherited arrhythmias.