

Iqwal Mangat, MD

Biography

Graduated from University of Toronto Medical School 1993

Postgraduate Training in Internal medicine and Cardiology – University of Toronto, 1993-1999

Cardiac Electrophysiology Fellowship – University of San Francisco, California, 1999-2001

Clinical Instructor of Medicine – University of San Francisco, California, 2001-2002

Current Position:

Assistant professor of Medicine, University of Toronto

Director, Arrhythmia Program at St. Michael's Hospital

Clinical and Research Interests Include:

- Evaluation and management of patients with syncope, palpitations, risk factors for sudden cardiac death.
- Arrhythmia management including supraventricular and ventricular tachycardias, inherited arrhythmic syndromes including RV dysplasia, long QT syndrome and Brugada syndrome.
- Device Implantation including pacemakers, implanted defibrillators, cardiac resynchronization therapy, implanted loop recorders
- Special interest in atrial fibrillation, including novel therapeutic strategies and catheter ablation.
- Spearheaded the development of an Atrial Fibrillation Centre at St. Michael's Hospital (July 2009) which is a rapid access centre for management of patients with atrial fibrillation, with a focus on patient education.
- Helped develop and currently manage ECG teaching website "ECG Made Simple" – www.ecgmadesimple.com (FREE to use)